

Sedation Update 2015

A COURSE FOR THE WHOLE DENTAL TEAM

The effective management of anxiety and pain is an essential part of the delivery of dental care. Behavioural management, the use of local analgesia and methods of conscious sedation are all central components of care for patients who are frequently anxious about receiving dental treatment. Conscious sedation, provided when appropriate, in a skilled manner and in the correct environment, is widely used, valuable and effective.

Aim

The aim of the day is to review current guidance and provide an update on sedation for the whole dental team.

Objectives

- To refresh current knowledge on sedation practice
- To review changes in guidance and potential effects on practice

Learning Outcome

- By the end of the session delegates will have updated knowledge on sedation practice and current guidelines
