

Teaching the Trainers (2-Day Course)

Additional Information

Tutor: David Clegg

Course Objectives:

By the end of the 2 days participants will have had the opportunity to:

- Consider key skills needed for effective teaching
- Explore underpinning concepts of adult learning, feedback, evaluation and assessment techniques and how these can be built upon within medical/clinical education
- Identify different styles of teaching and learning
- Develop and practise strategies for planning and delivering effective teaching and training
- Plan and deliver a short teaching session
- Deliver and receive feedback on a short teaching session
- Explore the use of Information Technology in teaching and training

Teaching Methods:

This is a practical and interactive course using a range of participative teaching methods including: presentations, individual tasks, small group discussions and activities, mobile phone apps.

Pre-Course Tasks:

There are no formal pre-course tasks, however delegates are asked to install 2 apps on to their phone/tablet that will be used on day one. Delegates are also asked to give some initial thought to the topic (which can be work or non-work related) they would like to teach on day two.

Course Materials:

Delegates will receive all course handouts, and copies of the exercises/documents used in the session as PDF or Word files electronically after each day of the course. Delegates will also receive a "Learning Styles Inventory" booklet and questionnaire – this will allow delegates to identify and explore their own learning style preference.

Feedback Comments:

Your feedback is important to us and helps us ensure our teaching training programme delivers good quality teaching and training. We are very pleased that this course receives positive feedback ratings and comments, recent responses include:

"Very interactive course. Learnt a lot. Really enjoyed it."

"Excellent course, good tutor"

"Definitely would recommend it (in fact I already have!!). Thanks"

"Good teaching of new teaching techniques, e.g. IT skills."

"Thoroughly enjoyable course, informative, educational and fun!"

"Exceeded expectations. Very enjoyable and informative two days."

Further Information:

If you require any further information about the course please email the course tutor, David Clegg, via david@davidclegg.co.uk